THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.

Jesus Healing in Capernaum (Mark i, 21-34).

By J. E. Gilbert, LL. D., Secretary of American Society of Heligious Discartion, CONTEXT—After his sermon and rejection at Nazareth, as related in last lesson, Jesus went down to Capernaum. He had previously visited the place, in company with relatives. (John il, 12) Now, he pro-posed to make this commercial metropolis of Gatilee his permanent home, the center of his public ministry, (Matt. iv. II.) His first act after entering the city was to recall four of the disciples-Peter, Andrew, James and John-whom he had gained sev-eral months before while he was near the Baptist at the Jordan (John i, 37.) They appear to have left Jesus temporarily to re-turn to their old pursuits as fishermen. But while walking along the seashers, near Capernaum, Jesus found them (Matt. iv. 18-29, and called them, and they immediately responded and became thereafter his followers. SURPRISE-(Verses 21 and 21) Returning ADMINISTRATION OF THE PROPERTY with the four disciples to Capernaum, which was their home also, Jesus entered into the synagogue on the Sabbath to to h. This was his custom. (Luke iv. 31.) Fire-eminently he was a teacher. Whatever size he sought to do, he desired nisove all else to correct the popular errors of the time and to lead to the SiCKNESS—(Verses 29 and 25) Peter was married, as were most of the apostlex (I Cor. ix, 5), the conjugal relation being then held essential to a Bishop. (I Tim., fil, 2) With him resided his wife's mother, probably an aged widow, and Andrew, his brother, perhaps a bachelor. After the expulsion of the demon Jesus retired from the synagogue and sought the quiet of this little family, just such a respite from public duties as every man requires to prepare him for further service. James and John accompanied him. Opportunity was thus accompanied him. Opportunity was thus presented for one of those confidential in-terviews in which our Lord drew his disciples into the closest relation and gave them truths not designed for the multitude. (Matt. xvii. 1.) But in the retreat he was confronted by another aspect of human need which was ever before him. The old lady was sick and in bed, suffering under a vio-

REMEDY-(Verse II.) The case naturally REMEDIT—(verse ii.) The case naturally made a strong appeal unto our Lind. He was always moved with compassion fo-ward those who were in trouble (Matt. xv. 2b), whom he delighted to relieve on the score of disinterested issuevolence. In this instance he was a guest and his host was a disciple, and friends had besought him for the sick. (Leike Iv. 20, Having put forth power in behelf of a demoniac, probably a stranger, he could not now decline when the afflicted one was in more intimate re-lation. Entering into the sickroom he adopted a very simple method. He did not speak as on other occasion, (Mark v. 41), but he reached forth his hand and grasped the hand of the woman. That was enough. The healing virtue was conveyed (Mark v 20), the fover subsided, the sick was recov-ered. So complete was the cure that the woman left her couch and ministered to her guests, MULTITUDES-(Verses 32, 33, 21.) The good fortune of one is ever an encourage-ment to the many. (Psalm xxxii, 6). The great Physician, having restored the sick in Peter's house, will not lack patients. The news of what had transpired, borne by many into all parts of the city, awakened hope in every invalid, and toward eve-ning a great company was gathered at the doors. There were the diseased of divers complaints, expecting the same interposition in their behalf; there were those were passessed with devils, weary of their sad life and almost hopeless of relief. Then came a wonderful scene. The sick were cured. The devils were cast out. All went away rejoicing. And Jesus, the wonder-worker, still refusing the testimony of evil spirits, won that day the applause and gratitude of thousands of hearts, who held him as the great Repeter.

him as the great Benefactor. REFLECTIONS-1. Unclean spirits may be expected in religious assemblies. (Job i. 6.) They come to scoff or flatter, it is their business to dispute with Christ. 2. To be let alone is the cry of every soul under the control of Satan-sin bulls to slumber. 3. Intellectual assent to the divinity of Christ is no proof of virtue or faith. The devils believe and tremble. (James ii, 12.) 4. One power alone, that of Jesus, can overcome the work of Satan. To this end he came into the world. (I John iii, 8.) 5. The devil into the world. (I John iii, 8.) a The devil does not readily release his hold of men. When he does he raves. Whom he held with seeming composure he casts down when he leaves. 6. Nothing so moves the public as a genuine work of Jesus. One person saved is an argument to many seekers. 7. The dwelling of a fisherman disciple is an acceptable place for the lord of giory. Happy the home line which Jesus giory. Happy the home into which Jesus enters. 8. Woman, blessed by Christ may honorably serve him. Domestic labor is no reproach to a godly woman. S. Christ blesses wherever he goes. reproach

COTTON MARKET UNCERTAIN.

Close Was at Three Points Decline to Seven Points Advance.

EEPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, March 2.-The cotton market ontinued to show a very uneasy feeling tolay. The volume of business was smaller than for any day this week, a fact partly explained by poor telegraphic service, the money on hand, amounting to several wires still being down in many directions, hundred dollars. He threw pepper in her West and South However, after an excited opening at an advance of 5 to 19 points, arge business was transacted within a range of 12 points, the general tendency of

to take profits.

The decline would have been greater but for a demand, led by shorts, in May and August contracts. The short interest in these positions is noid to be yet very heavy and the local traders, while bearishly inclined, were afraid to sell cotton owing to this fact, and also to continued public confidence, and the talk of le cents at New York and 8 pence at Liverpool. This kept the market in a nervous condition all day and held down the voume of transactions very materially.

In the afternoon the market was rather quiet, with the trading mostly at an advance of 3 to 7 points over Thursday's closing prices, until just before the close, when there was an active selling movement under which the market closed easy at 3 points decline to 7 points advance net. Spot cotten ruled dull, with prices 1-ife higher on the baris of Suc for middling upland. Sales were 10 bales, Quotations follow:
